

Geometry Machine Revisited

Predrag Janičić¹[0000-0001-8922-4948] and Julien
Narboux²[0000-0003-3527-7184]

¹ Department for Computer Science, Faculty of Mathematics, University of Belgrade
email: `janicic@matf.bg.ac.rs`

² Université Paris Cité, IRIF
email: `narboux@irif.fr`

Abstract. Gelernter's Geometry Machine is significant not only as the very first automated prover for geometry but also as one of the earliest artificial intelligence systems. Developed almost seventy years ago, it remains a seminal work, in some aspects still fresh and inspiring. In this paper, we provide historical reflections on the Geometry Machine, interpret its results in modern terms, and attempt to reproduce its outputs.